

Photos from Brooks Field

circa 1919-1920

The following photographs were discovered in the personal photos and records of William Bristol Tufford (1900-1988), my great-grandfather. William was stationed at Brooks Field shortly after World War I, and worked in the Transportation Department as a tire repairman. The family story goes that he was lured to enlist with the promise of becoming a pilot, but after enlistment was told there were no more pilot positions open and was placed on another duty. The following photos show images of Brooks Field, San Antonio, and servicemen stationed at Brooks Field. Also included is a piece of paper which lists men on special duty at the Transportation Department in 1920. Some of the images show aircraft and buildings from Brooks Field, including various observational balloons. Captions were not included in the photo album, though for reference I will note that the man on the far right on both pages 26 and 27 is William Bristol Tufford.
